PRICE THREE CENTS

$5,000 LOSS IN STORAGE SHED BLAZE TODAY

Fire believed caused by an overheated stove early this morning gutted an 18 by 30 foot frame and corrugated iron shed and storage shed on Railroad street, owned by S. P. Snyder, 53 West Stevens street, with a loss estimated by Mr. Snyder at $5,000. There was no insurance, he said.

Flames were shooting high in the air when the fire siren was sounded at 12:30 a.m., and could be seen from most parts of Gettysburg, attracting a large throng of spectators, many of whom remained for a considerable time in a downpour of rain.

Firemen used booster lines until a two-and-a-half-inch line could be connected from a pumper at Railroad street and North Washington street, opposite the Victor Products plant.

A large quantity of cardboard cartons, rubber mallets, steel hammers and tools and hammer handles was stored in the building.

With the flames under control, firemen entered the building and threw out quantities of burning cartons, which were wetted down by hose lines and the rain. Firemen remained at the scene until 2:40 a.m., and were forced to return at 3:30 o'clock when the cardboard burst into flames again.

Attempts to reach Mr. Snyder by telephone failed, and it was not until shortly after 8 o'clock this morning that he learned of his loss from a reporter for The Gettysburg Times.

Firemen found another use for their hose lines besides fighting the fire. During its early stages a group of about 100, said to be mostly college students, stood on the sidelines and shouted, "cheered" and jeered the efforts of the firemen. They scattered when hose lines were turned on them.

The goal for the annual finance drive by the Adams county chapter of the Red Cross is $13,749. Campaign Chairman Harry D. Ridinger told the chapter's board of directors at their January meeting Tuesday evening in chapter headquarters.

With a larger staff of solicitors than ever before, the chapter will launch its drive under the direction of Mr. Ridinger and his co-chairman, John C. Stahle, with efforts to be aimed at completing the county-wide canvass in the first three weeks of the month.

Seven of the 10 districts in the county already are set up for the drive, the chairman said Tuesday evening, and he expects to have the organization complete by the end of this week. Preliminary "pop" meetings will be held in each district before the drive opens to complete preparations for a thorough and (Continued on Page 8)

Where U.S. Is Building Communications Center In County

The area shown above is a general view of the section of Adams county which is being added by the U. S. government to Camp Ritchie. Taken from an airplane at 1,500 feet with the camera pointed east, the view shows Fountaineau and the "Beard Lot," 1,500-foot high, mile-long wooded ridge, which the government is said to be planning to use as part of an underground communication center.

Broken lines indicate the approximate north and western boundaries of the plot desired by the government, with the line starting from the left of the picture following the Sunshine trail west, to its intersection with the Fountaineau-Sabillasville road. The broken line then follows the Fountaineau-Sabillasville road south.

The "Beard Lot" is the mountain occupying most of the upper half of the picture. The government began work on the project Monday. In the foreground, to the right of the Sunshine trail (Emmitsburg-Waynesboro road) and just below and west of the Sabillasville-Fountaineau road is the Charles C. Martin farm. The 1,100 acres sought by the government, according to its petition, includes most of the mountain area shown in the photograph.

BETA SIGMA PHI VOTES $100 FOR BOOKMOBILE

A regular meeting of Epsilon Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority was held Tuesday night at the Little House on East High street, with the president, Mrs. Grace Sheely, presiding.

The sorority voted a contribution of $100 to the bookmobile of the county library. The club recently sponsored a concert by Gerard Jennings, book pianist, for the benefit of the bookmobile fund. Lacking a final report on the concert, the sorority decided to make up any difference between the proceeds and the $100 voted Tuesday night from its treasury.

The sorority was asked to name representatives to the Adams County Home auxiliary and Mrs. Sheely and Mrs. Phyllis Hess volunteered. Several other members volunteered to read to residents of the county home and it was voted to take one "birthday month" at the county home as a sorority project. The sorority will entertain residents of the home whose birthdays come in the month chosen.

Thirteen members volunteered for the nurses' aide training course.

Good Evening

If you trust to luck for your success, you'll be lucky if you get it.

Tokyo, Jan. 24 (AP)—Allied troops slashed more than 10 miles beyond Wonju on the central Korean front today and to the southeast recaptured the key mountain town of Yongwol.

A heavily-armed patrol with tanks blazed through Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wonju, and pushed on to within 33 miles of the 38th Parallel before withdrawing, a field dispatch said.

It was the farthest northward advance by any Allied force since Seoul, the Korean capital, was abandoned. On the way back the task force was engaged by a company of enemy troops. The Reds retreated with heavy casualties.

The Han river town of Yongwol southeast of Wonju fell to Allied attack and an air and artillery bombardment.

The capturing force was not identified. However, the U. S. Seventh Division, only American force to reach the Manchurian border in the Korean war, has been operating south of the tungsten mining town. A. P. Correspondent Tom Stone said the attacking force drove across the ice-covered Han river across the ice-covered Han tillery barrage. The surprised Reds fled, leaving only light opposition.

FATIGUE PLEA WINS ACQUITTAL FOR MOTORIST

The "utter fatigue" that a salesman is likely to experience after a "tough day" following several sleepless nights may appear to the lay eye to be drunkenness, particularly if the person has been drinking, but actually it is not.

That appeared to be the opinion of an Adams county jury which Tuesday afternoon acquitted John Kenneth Desmond, Philadelphia, of a charge of drunken driving, and placed the costs of the case on the county.

Gettysburg Policeman Raymond Menges told the jury that, following a request from state police, he went to York street and found a car headed east that, he said, was swerving back and forth. Another car was between him and the swerving car, but, when it halted (Continued on Page 2)

A letter was read from the Adams County Home auxiliary asking that the club name representatives from its membership to the auxiliary and to assist in this organization's work at the county home. The matter was referred to the board of control, which met later and named E. Donald Scott. The board also voted to contribute $25 to the junior republic.

Discover Why Skeeters Bite

State College, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—Ever wonder why mosquitoes bite the bite on you and spare others? Two Pennsylvania State college scientists have an answer—you've got the right taste appeal.

Drs. Hubert W. Frings and Charles L. Hamrum, reporting on a study of habits and fancies of mosquitoes, say that the female—the male doesn't go after blood—tests your taste appeal before sinking the stinger. This is done, they explain, through sensitive samplers on her nose and legs.

If the mosquito bites, say the researchers, it means she has found the blood type which suits a really keen and subtle sense of taste.

across the Yalu river and attacked the American Thunderjets. The American planes fought clear without damage, as they did Tuesday when the swift Thunderjets shot down three and possibly four MiGs and damaged three others.

Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Fifth Air Force commander, said 63 enemy jets have been destroyed, probably destroyed or damaged since the Russian-made planes first showed in the Korean war last November.

Rifle Women Appear

U.S. air losses during the same period, he said, were five. On the ground, a band of 500 rifle women showed seven miles south of Yongwol with a Red Korean force of 1,500 troops.

A tank led patrol pushed within one mile of Hoengang, 10 miles north of Wonju on the central front.

This is the farthest northward advance since the probing attacks began in the central front. Hoengang is about the same distance south of parallel 38 as Seoul, South Korean capital which fell to the Reds Jan. 4.

An A.P. field dispatch said an enemy group of from 30 to 60 Reds was dispersed about four miles south of Hoengang with small arms fire. Another enemy force was dispersed two miles south of the town. When the patrol crossed a bridge one mile south of Hoengang, no enemy was in sight.

near the Evans store, he said he saw that the vehicle bore the license number of the car he was asked to check.

Says Man Staggered

Menges said the driver, identified as Desmond, staggered after getting out of the car and held on to a pole at the store for support. At Justice of the Peace John H. Basore's office, Menges said, Desmond had difficulty in walking. He said he walked into the door when he attempted to leave the office, and said there was a "strong odor" of alcohol on the Philadelphia salesman's breath.

Desmond asked that a physician check his condition, Menges said, but testified that he told Desmond there was no sense in calling one. Menges said that his experience was that local doctors generally refuse to test a person for drunkenness because it usually involves having to go to court as a witness.

Justice Basore testified that Desmond was "thick in his speech" and "seemed to have difficulty in walking." He added that "he seemed to be concentrating real hard before he said or did anything."

Admitted Drinking

Desmond, only witness for the defense, said he had had several cocktails at a luncheon with some prospective buyers at Philadelphia about six hours before his arrest. He said that he was not affected by them, but that storm damage to his home, which had kept him awake several nights, and the hard work he had done during the day had so fatigued him that he may have staggered a bit as he walked.

He said tiredness also led him to "forget" how to get from Desmond to Waynesboro despite the fact that he had been making the trip frequently over the past two decades. Testimony by Roy Hankey revealed that he had stopped at the Hankey and Plank garage and asked directions to Waynesboro twice before starting up York street, and apparently going around the square and down York street again just before his arrest. Hankey said Desmond fell over a bench in leaving the garage.

The blast was heard for blocks, the fire blocked traffic for several hours on the adjoining Ostend street bridge, a principal artery between south and southwest Baltimore. The explosion was in the "dipping room," a converted two-story dwelling across the street from the main plant of the Holite Rubber company.

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Price Stabilizer Michael Disalle said today he has given Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston recommendations for a general price freeze. He made the statement before the joint Senate-House Economic committee.

Disalle did not make public details of his recommendations but said that an announcement probably will be made within a couple of days. His testimony followed word from other officials that a price roll-back may be expected tomorrow, possibly to be followed by a wage freeze on Friday.

Lake Success, Jan. 24 (AP)—A breaking broadcast by Prime Minister Nehru of India today widened the gulf between the nations that want to welcome Red China into the U.N. and those who want to brand her as an aggressor in Korea.

Nehru, highly critical of U.S. policy in the far east, called for a conference of major powers and insisted the Chinese Communists want to negotiate a peace.

RESIGNATION OF SOROPTIMISTS
Dorothy Wehler, library assistant, to 72 county schools each month during the school year. She exhibited a number of books for the various grade school levels and pointed out books which would appeal to different age groups. She also reported on the "pre-bound" book, a new process of binding, which, through more expensive than ordinary binding, gives longer life to the books.

Three new members were initiated into the Soroptimists by Mrs. Guyon E. Buehler, a past president of the club. She presented corsages of yellow carnations and blue ribbons, following the initiation ceremony, to the new members, Mrs. John H. Basore, East Middle street, Mrs. George D. Ditchburn, East Middle street and Miss Anna Weaver, Littlestown.

Following the meeting, at which the president, Mrs. Elizabeth Hennig, presided, 30 members accompanied Mrs. Snyder to the library building on East High street, for an inspection tour.

The meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance to the flag, singing of America, and invocation by Mrs. Samuel Higinbotham, who also served as accompanist for the group singing led by Mrs. Frances Burton.

The turkey dinner was served by the Annie Danner club of the YWCA. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. David Blocher, chairman; Mrs. Irving Bierer and Miss Louise Frazier. The club will hold its next business meeting on Tuesday evening, February 13, at the "Y" building, Mrs. Hennig announced.

Rubber Heel Plant Blast Fatal To Two
Baltimore, Jan. 24 (AP)—Two workmen were trapped and burned to death today when an explosion spread fire through part of a rubber heel factory on the south edge of the downtown district. Two others were burned, one of them critically.

Fierce flames from combustible materials used in rubber processing kept firemen at a distance for more than two hours. They finally found two bodies in the debris. The men had been trapped when the second floor crashed down as the result of the explosion. Their identities could not be established immediately.

The blast was heard for blocks, the fire blocked traffic for several hours on the adjoining Ostend street bridge, a principal artery between south and southwest Baltimore. The explosion was in the "dipping room," a converted two-story dwelling across the street from the main plant of the Holite Rubber company.

Thurmont Man Is Hurt In Accident
John H. Stutely, 27, Thurmont, is in the Frederick hospital with serious injuries suffered about 2:10 o'clock Saturday morning on Route 15 at the southern limits of Emmitsburg.

Physicians said Stutely suffered fractures of both jaws and a compound fracture of the left leg.

Maryland State Trooper H. J. Brown said Stutely was walking northward along the east side of Route 15 when struck by a car operated by Ralph Mueckl, 24, Buffalo, N. Y. Mueckl, he said, was forced off the highway when a tractor trailer, operated by Samuel Edgar Weber, 36, Reidsville, Ga., pulled out of a filling station in the path of Mueckl's car. Mueckl told the officer he did not see Stutely walking along the highway.

Weber was charged with failing to give the right-of-way and Mueckl was charged with reckless driving.

Students of Gettysburg high school attended the court sessions Tuesday afternoon and this morning. The trip, sponsored by the county bar association, included a party in the court room and visits to the various county offices where the work of the offices was explained.

Littlestown Chief of Police Leon H. Gage was found guilty of providing intoxicating liquors to a person of known temperate habits following the conclusion of Gage's trial Tuesday afternoon. The jury debated nearly four hours before returning with its verdict in which it found Gage innocent on three of the four charges of providing wine to John Franklin "Dick" Mays, of Littlestown, and found him guilty of the fourth charge. The jury recommended leniency.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON SHAKING HANDS

Of all the many ways of greeting another, to me this shaking hands takes the lead. When prompted by sincerity, it can mean so much. I sat in the waiting room of a club as a guest of a friend of mine in Cleveland, Ohio. I was a little early, so had the opportunity of studying the men who came in. It was a friendly club for business men. Invariably there was the shaking of hands between men as they arrived.

This is a wonderful custom, among friendly men. The handshake is an accurate barometer of the warmth or the coldness of the hearts of those who partake of it. Enemies of a man don't like to shake hands with him. Such a procedure, however, might easily change that enemy into a friend, so electric is the handshake of many a person, and, I might add, so genuine and sincere.

People boast of the fact that they have shaken the hand of some great person, as though they had gained virtue thereby—as perhaps they did! I have noted the shaking of hands between those noble men of the United Nations, who desire above everything else peace and good will in the world among all nations, and those who wish nothing but power through aggression and the defeat of all law and moral standards. It makes one wonder what goes on in the hearts of such enemies to freedom. The handshake—of what is it a symbol?

I should like to think that the handshake is a symbol—a universal one—of love, of understanding, and good will. Otherwise its very act could only be interpreted as hypocritical. This shaking of the hands is significant of far more than a mere act. It is—or should be—a spiritual confession of the meeting of mind and heart in a silent communion.

How inspiring it is to note the end of all enmity and bitterness when two people have consented to shake hands and bury all differences! In all public affairs this union of hands bespeaks friendliness and unity of purpose on the part of individuals and organizations. It is also a sign of cordiality and human betterment. It is an act of pride, as well, in one's dignity.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "If You Must Look Back"

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE MANY AND THE FEW
Acquaintances, from day to day,
In number may increase.
We meet and send them on their way
Without a binding lease.
Dwellers among the many, they,
Of whom we say we know;
But few of them, 'tis true to say,
Will into good friends grow.

We hear the mention of a name
To boast that we have met
That we may share the little fame
Some one has chance to get.
But were we in the depths of gloom,
Or should disaster fall,
He would not be the friend on whom
For aid we'd think to call.

Acquaintances we merely know,
The old ones and the new.
Since friendship slower is to grow,
We only trust a few.
And this the difference which parts
Acquaintances from friends:
The few will give to us their hearts
Until life's journey ends.

News Of Interest To Upper Communities Of County

Many Advances Made In Orchard Practices As Result Of 33 Years Of Research At Arendtsville Laboratory

By FRANK N. NEWETSON
(Staff Horticulturist)

The South Mountain Fruit Research laboratory at Arendtsville is one of the three field stations of the Agricultural Experiment Station of Pennsylvania State college. It is designed to serve the fruit growers in York, Adams, Franklin and Cumberland counties and was located in Adams county because this was considered to be the most central location for the area and provided orchard conditions most suitable for studying the fruit growers problems of these four counties.

In order to understand and appreciate the present status and work of this laboratory, it might be well to outline the development of the agricultural program of the Pennsylvania State college at it relates to the establishment of field laboratories in Pennsylvania.

First Station In 1887

In 1887, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania authorized Pennsylvania State college to purchase and establish three "experimental and model farms," to be located, one in the eastern and one in the western part of the state and one at the college at State College. The eastern station farm was located at West Grove in Chester county and the western experiment station farm at Indiana, Indiana county. The administrative set-up of these farms was complicated and experiments on the western experiment farm were discontinued in 1872 and those on the eastern farm in 1887, when those two farms were sold.

The year of 1887 marks the establishment of the first organized agricultural experiment station in Pennsylvania, as well as in other states, as a result of the passage of the Hatch Act by Congress in that year. The central experiment farm of 110 acres at State College, was made available to the new agricultural experiment station.

Comparatively little expansion of the research program occurred until after 1900, when the farmers of Pennsylvania began to realize the potential value to them of the research being done by the experiment station in the livestock and fruit growing industries; the former by experiments on forage crops, steer feeding, use of milk separators and the Babcock tests; the latter from experiments on the control of insect pests and diseases by spraying.

The experiment station started to conduct investigations in the field where the problems arose. Some of these investigations later took on a semi-permanent status, resulting in the establishment of semi-permanent sub-stations. One of the first such sub-stations in Pennsylvania was located in Lancaster county for the purpose of carrying on experiments with tobacco. In 1918 the fruit research laboratory at Arendtsville was established and about 1937 a field laboratory at North East in Erie county was set up to study problems in fruit and vegetable production in that area.

Establishment Of Arendtsville Lab
As the fruit industry in south central Pennsylvania expanded, the grower was confronted with more and more problems specific to this area. In 1916, C. H. Hadley, then extension entomologist, conceived the idea of establishing a field laboratory in Adams county in order to conduct research on the insects affecting the fruit in this area. In the spring of 1917, therefore, J. R. Eyer was employed as an entomologist for the Adams county area and set up a temporary insectary at Flora Dale. Preliminary studies were made and surveys conducted to determine the more important insects and those deserving special

The First Twenty Years

In 1918 a laboratory was established with a plant pathologist and entomologist working on a twelve-month basis at Arendtsville. The hotel at Arendtsville served as office space, laboratory and dwellings for the early scientists and their families. R. C. Walton was secured as the first plant pathologist and Dr. S. W. Frost became the first entomologist. During the first few years these two men secured much worthwhile information concerning fruit insects and diseases. The equipment at this time was not elaborate and there was little opportunity to conduct extensive laboratory work. Much of the time was devoted to experiments in commercial orchards and in making insect and disease surveys.

In the early days, the plant pathologist was interested chiefly in apple scab and frog-eye, the latter causing considerable defoliation in certain apple orchards. The entomologist was concerned with aphids, red bugs and leaf rollers. The European red mite was found for the first time in the United States in certain orchards in Adams county. The red-banded leaf roller, contrary to previous opinions, was found to be the most important species in Pennsylvania and demanded different methods of control to that used for the fruit tree leaf roller common in New York state.

In 1922 the hotel property was sold and it was necessary to find new quarters. Nothing could be rented, so the scientists and a public spirited fruit grower pooled resources and purchased the old Arendtsville school property on Gettysburg street.

In 1927 the untimely death of Mr. Walton left the laboratory without a resident plant pathologist. For the next 10 years the work on fruit diseases was conducted by Dr. H. W. Thurston, Jr., and other members of the Botany department at State College. His investigations were primarily concerned with disease control and injury by fungicides on apples. During this period, only the entomologist, Dr. Frost, was in residence at the laboratory. At this time the Oriental fruit moth became a problem in Adams county. Studies were centered chiefly on attractants for the moths. This was a comparatively new field of work and attracted attention throughout the country. Extension investigations were also conducted with oil emulsion sprays in the dormant and delayed dormant periods.

Reorganization Of The Laboratory

In 1936 the college decided to close the laboratory as an economy measure. Dr. Frost, the resident entomologist, was therefore moved to State College. As soon as the fruit growers realized that their laboratory was really closed, they got together and demanded that it not only be reopened, but that it be enlarged. As a result of these requests by the fruit growers, the whole laboratory was reorganized and the permanent staff increased from one to four. In addition to an entomologist, a plant pathologist was again assigned to the laboratory and new positions of horticulturist and soil scientist created. The position of entomologist was filled by Harold Steiner, while Harold Miller took over the work in plant pathology. C. O. Dunbar was appointed a horticulturist and Nelson Shaulis a soil scientist. In order to provide facilities for the increased personnel, two offices and a laboratory were built on the back of the original schoolhouse.

While at Arendtsville, Dr. Miller continued the work on fungicides for apple scab control and began new projects on correlation of laboratory and field studies of fungicidal efficiency, techniques for field studies of fungicides and the control of cherry leaf spot. In 1943 Dr. Miller was transferred to State College and the position of plant pathologist filled by Dr. F. H. Lewis.

Changes In Staff

In 1943 Dr. Shaulis resigned as resident soil scientist. Since then the position has not been filled, but the soil work has been continued by Dr. Alderfer, working out from State College and in conjunction with the resident horticulturist at Arendtsville.

Mr. Dunbar initiated the horticultural research program at Arendtsville. As a result of his early work, valuable information was obtained on the suitability of various grasses and legumes for orchard cover crops in this area. He also made extensive observations on the performance of the new peach varieties being introduced by the New Jersey experiment station in order to determine their suitability for south central Pennsylvania. In 1944 Mr. Dunbar resigned and his position was filled by Frank N. Hewetson, the present horticulturist.

During his eight seasons of work at the laboratory, Mr. Steiner, the entomologist, worked extensively to improve the methods of controlling codling moth, red mites and pestle case bearers on apple trees and plum curculios on peach trees. His technique of spraying to control codling moth is still followed closely by commercial growers. In 1946 Mr. Steiner resigned to accept the position of farm manager for the M. E. Knouse farms in Adams county. In the following year, Dr. N. D. Blackburn took over the entomological work for six months and then moved to State College. In 1948 the present entomologist, Dean Asquith, took charge of the entomological research at Arendtsville.

A Permanent Home

Soon after the reorganization of the laboratory in 1937, an advisory committee, consisting of fruit growers and college officials, was appointed to guide and foster its program. At the 1944 annual meeting of this committee, a resolution was proposed for the establishment of a permanent and enlarged home for the laboratory. This laboratory had already proved its worth to the growers, and they were anxious to help provide more adequate facilities for the development of research on their fruit growing problems.

By the spring of 1948, as a result of the 1944 resolution, a non-profit corporation, known as the South Mountain Fruit Research Laboratories, had been formed to finance the expansion program. Soon thereafter, through the efforts of various sub-committees, two pieces of property were purchased in the borough of Arendtsville. One consisted of 15 acres of excellent fruit land, just inside the borough limits, the other an eight room brick house and several outbuildings suitable for conversion into garages and storage space, located near the center of Arendtsville. The house and outbuildings were remodeled and now provide satisfactory accommodation for the present staff.

The Present Research Program

At present, the work of the laboratory is divided between the entomologist, plant pathologist and horticulturist, each responsible for the problems arising in his respective field, but all cooperating and helping one another as the occasion demands. The work in entomology and plant pathology is governed by the immediate problems of insect and disease control, while that in horticulture is designed to obtain information on the long time problems of orchard soil management, winter injury, new cultural practices and variety testing.

In entomology, the current investigations consist of (1) experiments with dormant and delayed dormant sprays on apple and peach for the control of European red mite, aphids and scale insects, (2) studies of the biology and control of the plum curculio on peach and (3) testing of mist machines in the applications of concentrated insecticides.

The work on peaches with dormant and delayed dormant sprays has shown that European fruit lecanium scales are easier to kill with dormant sprays than are the terrapin scales, but that terrapin scales can be controlled rather effectively by the use of a three per cent superior dormant oil. Also, high paraffinic-type oils for application to peach trees in the pink bud stage of development are safer than the low paraffinic-type oils, and oil applied as a driving spray will kill a higher percentage of terrapin scales than the same oil applied as a mist. The control of European red mite on apples by the use of dormant and delayed dormant sprays was found to be more effective when a superior type oil was used in the dormant and delayed dormant spray in place of a regular type oil.

New Problems, New Machines

The current work on plum curculio on peach is designed to learn the best way to fit new insecticides such as dieldrin and Parathion into the spray schedule. Attention is being given to the efficiency of the new chemicals as insecticides and their influence on the quality of peach fruits. Results of this work will be reflected in the new Peach Spraying Suggestions which will be supplied by the county agents.

In recognition of the possible economies to be realized from the use of mist machines in the applications of concentrated sprays, air blast machines are being used experimentally to apply chemicals to apples, peaches and cherries. The purpose of the work is to learn the facts growers should know to enable them to use mist machines safely and successfully. Growers who have already ventured to spray with mist concentrates find that their spray bills have been reduced 40 per cent. The work on mist concentrates is a cooperative project between entomology and plant pathology.

Four Main Projects

In plant pathology the present program is directed along three major lines: (1) continued studies on more effective, less injurious fungicides for fruit disease control, (2) studies on the diseases of the sour cherry, with increasing emphasis on the establishment and maintenance of a budwood source free of the virus diseases Yellow and Ring Spot, and (3) testing of mist machines in the application of concentrated fungicides.

For scab control on apples, float-ation or Magnetic-70 sulfur paste either alone or mixed with one of the Ferbam materials, has given good control and good foliage. In order to produce the best fruit and foliage on sour cherry trees while controlling leaf spot, the most satisfactory program seems to be one in which Bordeaux mixture is used in the pink stage of bud development, followed by 341B in three sprays in May, Magnetic-70 sulfur paste plus Ferbam in June and, Bordeaux mixture after harvest. With the completion of the new greenhouse at the laboratory, more intensive work can now be done on those virus diseases of cherry which are serious in this area.

In the field of research covered by horticulture, the work is grouped under four main projects. These are (1) orchard soil management, (2) winter injury, (3) new cultural practices and (4) variety testing.

The work in orchard soil management includes a study of various cover crops with respect to their performance in the orchard and their effect on tree growth and fruiting. Also included in this project are experiments to study the nutritional needs of the tree with respect to various fertilizers and soil conditions. Winter injury studies are confined mostly to observations of the many factors and conditions which cause low temperature injury to trees in the area served by the laboratory, to the end that the growers may be provided with information which might spare future losses from such causes. New cultural practices in fruit growing are developed each year. The testing of chemicals to control fruit set, fruit drop, and some of the objectionable weeds found in orchards, are some of the investigations being carried on under this project. Finally there is the ever present problem of testing new varieties of fruit and (Continued on Page 8)

At the woods the Scouts cooked their own meal and took tests for first and second class scouting and merit badge work. The group hiked to the woods by the Mill road and returned by way of the Taneytown road. They also visited the dam near Menges mill.

GOP IS COOL TO "COMPROMISE"
Harrisburg, Jan. 24 (AP)—A Democratic offer of a compromise to end the Senate deadlock over continuation of Charles J. Margiotti, got a cold shoulder today from Republican lawmakers.
The compromise offer came from Sen. John J. Haluska, of Cambria county, Democratic whip. Democrats have been strongly opposing retention of Margiotti in the government's top legal post.
Haluska told Senate Republicans yesterday that if they could muster their entire 30-vote bloc, he would produce the four Democratic votes needed to confirm Margiotti as attorney general. Thirty-four votes are required to confirm appointments.
Haluska's offer was immediately declared a "trick," by Sen. John M. Walker, (R-Allegheny). "It was not a bona fide offer," the GOP floor leader declared. "In the first place, he (Haluska) can't produce the four votes, and in the second place, he doesn't want to."
Haluska said, however, his compromise offer was an effort to show that Democrats are not seeking to obstruct operation of the Senate. He said part of the trouble lies within Republican ranks. He said at least one Republican is opposed to Margiotti's retention as attorney general. He named the Republican as Sen. Leroy Chapman (R-Warren).

"I GET WONDERFUL RELIEF NOW FROM HOT FLUSHES and urge every woman 38 to 52 years old who suffers this distress to try Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound"

"I had heard so many stories about the functional middle-age period peculiar to women—I hoped I'd escape such symptoms. But I didn't. I found myself terribly embarrassed by hot flushes—I suffered such restless nights, and I could sense myself getting irritable and cranky—due to this cause."
"My druggist recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound to relieve such symptoms. I can understand now why he called it 'the woman's friend.' Pinkham's Compound gives me amazing relief. I find if I take it regularly—don't miss a day—it helps build up resistance against such middle-age distress."
P. S. Pinkham's Compound is very tasty in a little fruit juice. Or you may prefer Lydia Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron. Handy to carry in your purse.

Committees Favor Troops To Europe
Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Administration can count on the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees to approve a resolution endorsing the dispatch of American troops to Europe.
A spot check by the Associated Press of 21 of the 26 members of the two committees showed that as of today 14 favor such a move and not one publicly opposes it. A favorable recommendation by the two committees would carry heavy weight with the Senate itself.
However, there was a sharp but inconclusive difference of opinion among the 21 committeemen reached on whether Congress should put a ceiling on the number of ground forces that may be dispatched under the North Atlantic treaty.
Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who favors limiting the number of Divisions involved, has said he will carry that issue to the Senate floor.

Secretary Bevin Has Pneumonia
London, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Foreign office disclosed today that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has pneumonia.
Bevin, who has been in poor health for the last two years, came down yesterday with what was first diagnosed as influenza.
A spokesman for his office said today that the minister's physician has now found "a patch of pneumonia on one lung." He had just recovered from a severe cold which he contracted last week.
Bevin will be 70 in March. He Harrisburg, Jan. 24 (AP) — The Pennsylvania Federation of Fraternal and Social Organizations proposed legislation to deprive Communist-dominated clubs of their liquor or beer licenses. "We're against the idea of having clubs with Communist or other un-American tendencies hold licenses and we hope the Legislature will feel as we do," said Bertram G. Murphy, Reading, federation president.

Harrisburg, Jan. 24 (AP) — James Milholland, Pittsburgh attorney, will serve his sixth term as president of the Pennsylvania State college board of trustees. Milholland, who served as acting president of the college before the election of Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, was returned to the board presidency at the annual meeting of the trustees here Saturday. He has been a board member since 1930.

RADIO

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Mutual network, which broadcasts a dozen who-dun-its a week, is adding an extra touch. It is making arrangements to have a special program for mystery fans every Sunday afternoon.

The program will run 15 minutes as "Mr. Mystery." It will be a sort of editorial column on the "story behind the story" in which actors, authors and listeners can participate. Each week there will be a different host, starting February 4 with Joseph Di Santos, who plays detective roles. The opening theme will deal with mystery writers and their product.

The plan is to explore not only the detective field as it applies to radio, but to magazines, movies and other mediums.

CBS color television demonstrations, under way in New York since November 14, are being concluded with Friday's showing, the network announced, to make the equipment available for tryouts in other TV cities. The recently introduced Chicago showings, comprising test programs supplied by network relay from New York, also are being wound up today. The net work said the New York demonstrations had been by 300,000 viewers.

The new demonstrations are planned on a closed circuit basis in other TV communities outside of Philadelphia and Washington which have not seen color. Demonstrations were held in Washington over a long period during the recent hearings on color, while those in Philadelphia preceded the Chicago tests.

Because not enough receivers and other color apparatus are yet available, CBS said separate demonstration was the only immediate means of putting them on in new areas.

Pointing out that only 30.5 per cent of the funds raised in the drive in the county will be forwarded to the national Red Cross while the remainder stays in the county for the work of the local chapter, Chairman Ridinger said the appeal for generous donations is being based on these four reasons:

The greatly increased volume of calls upon the Red Cross for service by reason of the expansion of the armed forces and the war effort. The rapidly expanding blood donor service that is already supplying blood for the armed forces and will be prepared to supply civilian defense needs for blood if that necessity arises.

The expenses incident to the great expansion of the home nursing, first aid and nurses' aide programs in cooperation with the Civilian Defense program.

The higher costs of materials and services in all divisions of the Red Cross program.

Mr. Ridinger expressed confidence that the goal can be reached "if the Red Cross workers and the people of Adams county give us their help and support."

Many Advances

evaluating them for climatic and soil conditions of south central Pennsylvania in addition to the market needs of the various growers.

Helps Produce The Best
While the work of the South Mountain Fruit Research laboratory is designed primarily to give lasting information on improved methods of fruit production that will provide a basis for the compromises necessary in commercial fruit growing, one of the greatest immediate values of the work of this laboratory is the information provided the extension service and the fruit grower regarding new pests and the proper use of new spray materials.

The laboratory has paid for itself many times over in this way alone. The fruit grower has neither the time nor the facilities to keep abreast of the constantly changing situation except through some central organization such as the Pennsylvania State college. As a part of this organization, the South Mountain Fruit Research laboratory in Harrisburg serves the fruit grower of this Pennsylvania area by helping him solve his problems and improve his methods of producing clean, high quality fruit second to none.

Ask Bypass of York With New Highway

The York Chamber of Commerce Monday urged the state Department of Highways to bypass York in constructing the proposed new Baltimore-Harrisburg expressway.

In a letter to Ray Smock, state highways secretary, the Chamber declared "that ordinary common horse sense and practical wisdom would indicate the wisdom of planning a bypass around York now instead of later."

The letter states that the increase in bus and truck traffic north and south will overload the city. The new expressway will be the main connecting link between Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Williamsport, Harrisburg and as far north as Rochester, N. Y. and Erie. It will be the main connection to the north with the Pennsylvania turnpike at the Harrisburg-West Shore interchange.

New Oxford

New Oxford—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Douglas O'Connell has returned to their New York home after a brief visit to her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. George E. Sheffer, at the First Lutheran parsonage. Before her marriage several months ago, Mrs. O'Connell was Miss Marilyn R. Sheffer.

Improvement is reported in the condition of Dr. Karl S. Hoffmeister, local dentist, who has been ill for some months.

Mrs. Ryland Staub, who had been confined to her home by illness, was removed to the Hanover hospital last week for observation and further treatment.

Mrs. C. Clark Brown entertained fellow members of the local 500 club at her home Tuesday evening. Women of the Mile Society of St. Paul's Reformed church entertained the public at a pork-and-sauerkraut supper Saturday evening for the benefit of the church.

George D. Wolf, near town, was host during the past week to the consistory of St. Paul's Reformed church, New Chester, when members met at his home.

Dr. Robert E. Hemminger, local druggist, has returned to his duties after a recent absence due to ill health.

New residents of this area are Mr. and Mrs. R. Frank Johnson, who make their home on Lincolnway West after several months' residence in East Berlin.

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Norwegian soprano Kirsten Flagstad received an ovation from the audience on Monday in her first appearance at the Metropolitan opera in ten years. She sang the role of Isolde in Wagner's Tristan and Isolde. There were no pickets—as there had been at four of her post-war recitals at Carnegie Hall. The pickets charged her with undue favor to the occupying Nazis in Norway during the war—a charge she has denied.

McConnellsburg, Pa., Jan. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Hazel Mellott, 37, of nearby Knobsville, was killed instantly Sunday when she was struck by a car as she crossed the road in front of her home.

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie, back from a trip to Europe, says there is "less fear of imminent world war" there than there was last summer. Lie, who returned by plane yesterday, said the increased hope that a conflagration can be avoided is due partly to the United Nations intervention in Korea and the U.N. "united action for peace."

Baltimore, Jan. 24 (AP)—Dean Sunday claimed nine-year-old Robert Landon of Barberville, Md., who had been unconscious for 11 days after he was struck by an automobile.

The boy never once regained consciousness after suffering a compound skull fracture last September 26 in the accident near his home on the Laurel-Fort Meade road. He had been nourished by force-feeding and intravenous injections.
